PEANUTS

Groundnut or peanuts is the major oilseed of India. It accounts for around 25% of the total oilseed production of the country. Annual production of Indian Peanut and Indian Peanuts oil are around 5-8 million and 1.5 million tons respectively. Peanuts Production is highly vulnerable to rainfall deviations and display huge fluctuation between years. Peanuts have many uses. They can be eaten raw, used in recipes, made into solvents and oils, medicines, textile materials, and peanut butter. Boiled peanuts are a preparation of raw, unshelled green peanuts boiled in brine and often eaten as a snack. More recently, fried peanut recipes have emerged – allowing both shell and nut to be eaten.
